

Saluting Compassionate Doctors Dedicated to Helping Our Community

Access Now

In the Richmond area there are approximately 57,000 people who have no health insurance and no means to pay for it.

These working class families, young college graduates, and employed low-income adults do not qualify for Medicaid or Medicare. They need specialty services like Radiology, Gynecology, Gastroenterology, General Surgery, Cardiology, Oncology, Neurology, Ophthalmology – to name just a few. Often the only recourse available is an Emergency Department. That's a far more costly venue than a doctor's office. That's one reason why the Richmond Academy of Medicine created a stand-alone network of volunteer specialists who donate their services. These volunteer doctors provide a compassionate alternative to expensive ER care. They enable our local clinics to offer access to more comprehensive services for their patients.

The specialty network – called Access Now – includes over 550 doctors in 25 different specialties throughout the Richmond region. Doctors see Access Now referred patients in their private offices. Some services, like lab work, imaging and surgeries, are donated by physicians in our generous local hospitals.

So, now you know. You know that there are people who are unable to afford health care for themselves or their families. You know they depend upon safety net clinics for their primary care. And, you know that more than 550 community doctors volunteer through Access Now to see patients in private offices and at local hospitals without charge.

On this 75th anniversary of Doctor's Day, we salute Access Now volunteers for their compassionate care to the eligible uninsured of our community.*
